ON THE FIRING LINE.

The Democrats propose to issue a campaign hand-book citing alleged achievements of the party. In the estimation of the people, there are four achievements to be eredited-or perhaps charged is the better word-to the party in power. The first "achievement" is the Underwood tariff law, This law has closed thousands of factories, reduced hours in others, set at idleness more than a million men and brought stagnation to the business world. It doesn't pretend to be a protective measure, More than that, President Wilson, in his message of September 4, virtually confesses to Congress that the Underwood law has failed in its primary purpose of raising revenue for the Government at a time when the country was at absolute peace.

The second "achievement" is the banking and currency law. It has been on the statute books since December, 1913, but it is not yet in operation. There are three possible reasons for this. There is either something wrong with the law, or there is somthing wrong with those who are to administer it, or the administration does not dare put it into operation long before election for fear it will be demonstrated as big a failure as the Underwood tariff law.

The third/"achievement" is the repeal by the Democrats of the Panama free tolls, thus repudiating the ply form of their party, the President's own public p ge and the expressed will of an over-, majority of the American people.

rth "achievement" is the proposed apn by this Congress of a hundred midion ore than was appropriated by the last in Congress, and yet that Congress was condemned in the Baltimore platform for vagance.

the President or anyone of his party leaders or a minute the American people will not aish between real achievements and simply g amuek?

Lord was asked to save Sodom if ten rightmen could be found in it. Ten Democrats finally been found to make up the Federal Re-. Board, and yet the new "non-partisian" cury law has been amended once and another prod of amendment has been made, before it has ally taken effect at all.

The same short-sighted vision of husbandry and onomy that has made the Democratic South risk s financial prospects year after year practically the cotton crop alone so that it is now facing remendous possibilities of loss because of the Euopean war, is the same political economy that framed the Underwood tariff. And the failure of the Underwood tariff to provide revenue against emergencies now brings a whole nation face to face with the always obnoxious and to be dreaded war tax. The tariff, according to a famous Democratic authority, may be "a local issue" in the making, but it is a national issue after it is made and fails. It is merely the same old inevitable logic of results of the same old Democratic business incompetency.

The Government has voted to return to the State of Louisiana its Ordinance of Secession, passed in the troublous days of '61. Doubtless, it will simply be changed in its text a little and passed again in a secession from the Democratic party that has ruin-

When former President Taft happened to refer to himself as the "titular leader" of the Republican party, the Democratic papers made an awful howl. They said he should be President of the American people rather than leader of a party. President Wilson now calls himself "the leader of a great party" and the same editors applaud. Are there two standards of political morals, one for Republicans and one for Democrats?

The war, which has brought a new tax upon us. the pressure of public business, disturbed trade conditions and important trade opportunities did not prevent the President from making members of his Cabinet away from their dutles and sending them to make political speeches in the Maine congressional campaign. And then the Republicans elected three out of the four Congressmen,

THE BAYONET.

Another war theory is being shattered by the dramatically grim realities of the fighting on the River Aisne in France. We confidently were informed that it would be a physical impossibility for contending forces to reach the point of a handto-hand struggle for mastery,

Despite the magazine rifle, with its range of two miles, field artillery and shricking shrapnel, we are told that time after time the issue of mastery was settled by "cold steel."

We mournfully talk of the "days of chivalry" as if martial heroism were a relic of bygone ages. How may one imagine more reckless daring, more sustained courage than is involved in either pushing home or receiving a bayonet charge?

The individual, human factor still is the deciding element in war. Hellish instruments of destruction born in the genius of perdition are not all. The race is not always to the swift, nor the battle to the strong." Indomitable bravery still is a factor.-Commercial Tribune.

HOW TO TELL A GOOD AUTO DRIVER.

It has now come to be known that a good auto all over the burley belt, the crop has driver is recognized by the noise he doesn't make. If he permits his engine to run away and disturbs the whole Main street he is a novice; but if he stops and starts in an easy, quiet manner, he is an expert. Some who have had machines for years are still on the novice list, while others have be come experts in a few weeks,-Potts, of Colfax, Ill.

"Certainly, Mr. Swoggins," she replied sedately, and left the room in a dignified manner, but Swoggins could hear her running through the hall. Presently Mr. Kelly came in, and after a short conversation with the young man, patted him on the shoulder and again quitted the toom, calling his daughter back as he did so.

"It's getting late, Miss Kelly, I must go," said Swog gins. There was a smile of triumph on his face. "Shall I find you at home on Wednesday night?"

She smiled shy acquiescence, and, after seeing him to the door, rushed back to her father.

"Now, now," interrupted Mr. Kelly, "you must not ask questions-Mr. Swoggins wanted to see me on a matter which for the present must remain a secret,"

"Please tell me, father," she begged. She begged so hard that at last he said: "Oh, well-if you must know, he wanted to borrow a nickel to get home with."

TOBACCO

Promises Heavy Yield—Estimated at More Than Two Hundred Million Paunds

Mt. Sterling, Ky .- A careful study or obacco conditions in the burley belt by men engaged in the business brings out the statement "the best burley crop ever produced in Kentucky." This eems to be somewhat extravagant when the fact is known that the acreage was pronounced short and the year unseasonable for the work as well as the ulture of the weed. Never in the his tory of the crop in Central Kentucky has there been such an abundance of the weed, especially in fields that six weeks ago indicated almost complete

In Bath and Nicholas counties, where t was said about the middle of August that there would be practically no tobacco, estimates are now of 77 per cent. creage, with a 90 per cent, yield.

In Fleming and Mason counties, that about the same time had as many dis couraged tobacco men as one would want to come in contact with during a nonth's ride, growers now predict an mmense yield. In Fayette, Clark, Macson, Lincoln, Garrard, Anderson, Woodford, Bourbon, Scott, Harrison and Grant counties the same story is told, and the production in all these sections s much better than was ever anticipat d by growers at setting time.

In Montgomery county the yield is far beyond expectations and the crop the best ever grown in the county, which has been a tobacco-producing ounty for many years. The yield in he county will average over 1,100 ounds per acre, with some fields in leating yield of 2,000 pounds or over. The quality of the weed all over Cen ral Kentucky is very fine, with broad eaf and stalks topping extremely high, Cutting has been in progress for three weeks and some growers are becoming a little anxious for fear of frost cur come tobacco green, but in the main been allowed to get good and ripe be fore being put into the barns.

Some growers have finished the worl of cutting and housing and the tobacco which has been cut some time, is curing out in a very satisfactory manner.

The very large crop, coupled with the amount on hand, according to Government reports, does not indicate a high rice for the weed, and from the moscareful survey of the situation it is the he best, that it will take an exception ally good crop, carefully cured and presared and sorted in a masterly manner to average 15 cents per pound al-around. This buyer, who has not study and business of handling tobac for 30 years, stated that it would be to the grower's interest to handle his tobacco earefully and only sell on oad at a time, and not glut the loose eaf markets at their opening sales, The outlook is for a good year for obacco growers and warehouse men as over the state. Tobacco men have be gun to "elean house," and making ar rangements for the opening or the loos leaf markets, which will probably be it very county about December. Ther s no question but that the crop is enor mous in pounds for the season, and ex cellent in quality. The Burley yield
